Property Creation Starts Here

Customer Creation Starts Here

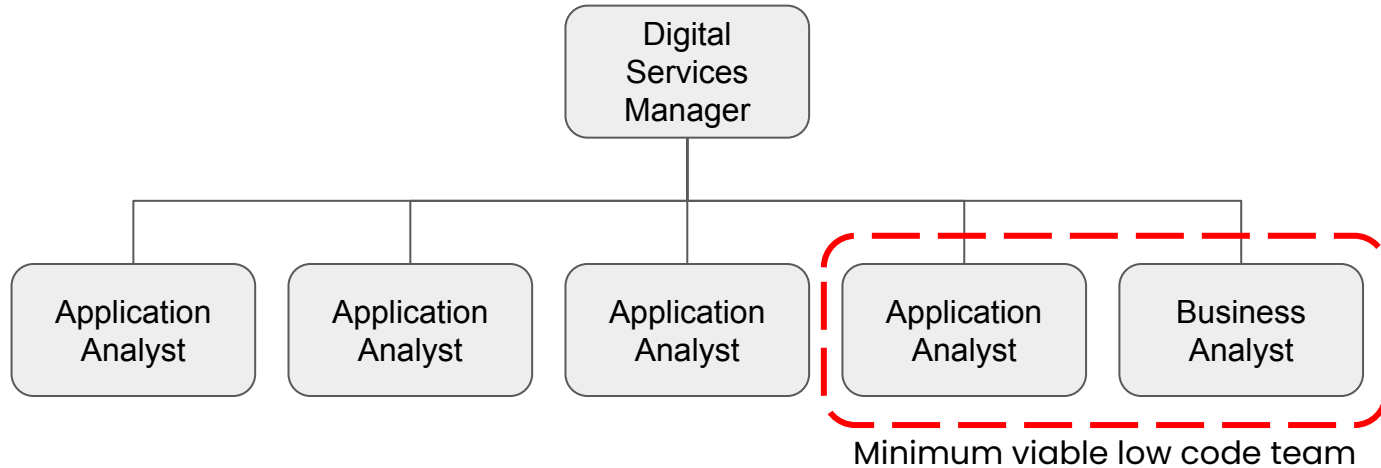

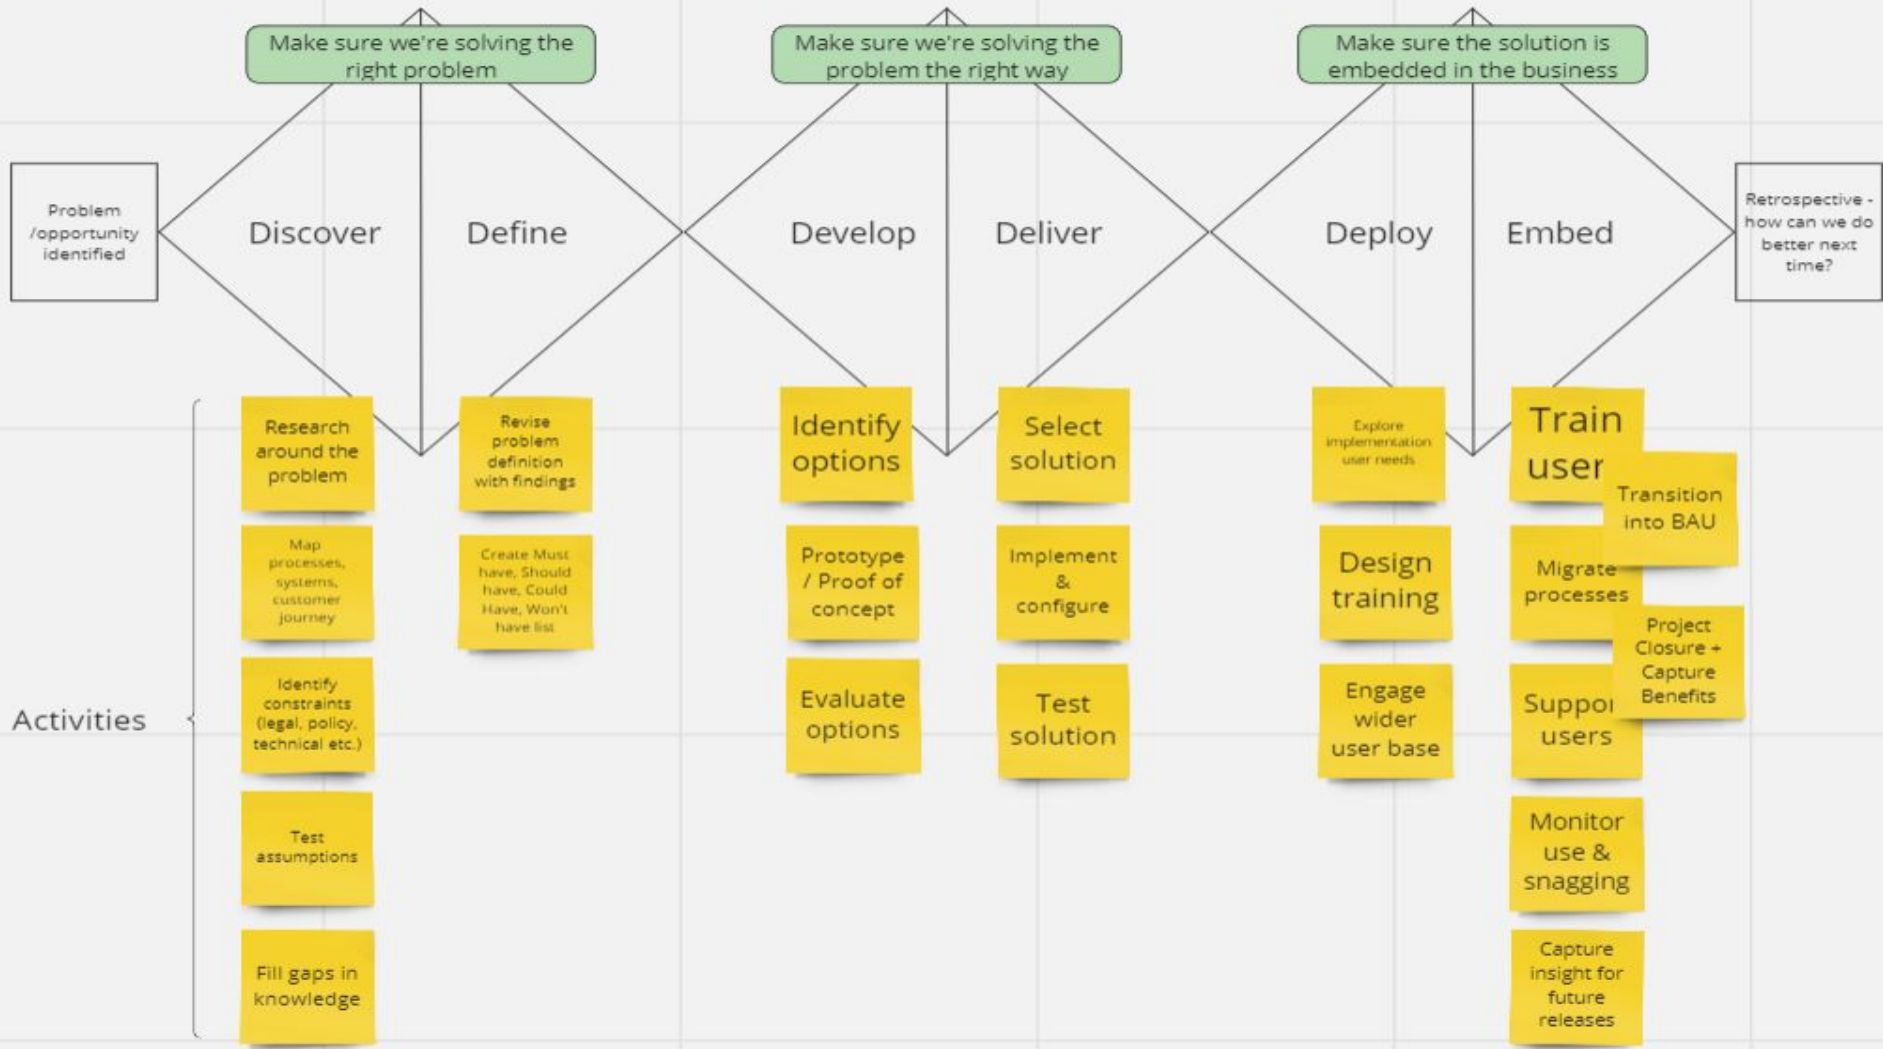

Why we chose a low code approach

- To bring capability in-house to develop and deliver systems based on colleague and customer needs (aka user centred design approach)
- A layer to sit on top of our systems and provide a joined up view of customers
- A way to pragmatically plug gaps in existing systems and services whilst we 'fix the plumbing'
- Creation of workflow that spans the boundaries of teams & systems

Our Team

Goals

- Make it easy for the team to provide good services to customers
- Improved understanding of how systems and processes are performing (transparency)
- A clear path/roadmap for improvements

So far, we've built...

- General enquiries
- Notice received
- Death notification
- Revised warning codes
- Compliments
- Complaints
- Anti-social behaviour
- Equality Diversity and Inclusion
- Complex repair cases

Colleague Feedback

I love that you can see the address field now, Thank you!! Makes it much easier when dealing with multiple complaints 😊

The email reminders where it says who has added to the Case Details has made life so much easier! - thanks.

Really good audit feedback all, loved the policy, procedure, process flow, training module, how engaged etc. overall said after what they'd seen 5/6 years ago, massive improvements and could see direction of travel etc

We're impressed with the speed in which changes have been made to the system and happy with the improvements.

Lessons learned (so far!)

Aim for the simplest, most useful thing

Trust the process

Avoid jargon

Keep the focus on colleague and customer needs

~~Failure~~
Learning is good

Work openly & collaborate

Creativity loves constraints

The background of the slide is a solid blue color with a pattern of white, stylized fingerprint ridges. The ridges are arranged in a way that suggests the shape of two hands, one on the left and one on the right, with the fingers pointing towards the center. The lines are thick and rounded, creating a clear, abstract representation of fingerprints.

Any questions?
